

HADLEIGH AIRFIELD

Until recently, if you drove to Ipswich from Hadleigh via station Road, after passing Pond Hall and climbing the hill, on the left you would see two wooden chalet bungalows, called No1 and No 2 Aerodrome cottages. To the North of these cottages the flat area bounded to the North by woodland was a 'Forward Operating Base' for The Royal Flying Corps in the First World War. However, in 1926, due to the enthusiasm of an ex RFC bomber pilot, Courtney M Prentice, by now a successful businessman in Stowmarket, the Suffolk (and Eastern Counties) Aeroplane Club was formed. In February 1927 the Club bought its first aeroplane, a Blackburn Bluebird soon followed by three more aircraft. In 1928 an Easter Air Display was arranged, the programme for which encouraged potential pilots to learn to fly 'which would enable you to fly to Australia in 16 days - for fifty five pounds!'

The Club grew rapidly and became a feature in the air calendar of the somewhat exclusive world of private flying. The Hon Lady Bailey of Leeds Castle in Kent agreed to become president and would attend meetings flying in with her friend Mrs De Thailand, whose husband subsequently designed the first jet airliner. The 1929 Kings Cup Air race used Hadleigh airfield as a turning point with judges appointed from club members, whilst in the same year an air taxi service was started from Hadleigh to Cambridge, new clubhouses having been completed to provide a suitable terminal at both locations.

The Club was sufficiently well established to be asked to run the new Ipswich Airport. On 26th June 1930 on its completion and the Club moved there after having sold its Hadleigh clubhouse and hanger to Ipswich Borough Council, for re-erection at Ipswich. The hanger was demolished relatively recently when Ipswich Borough decided to turn the airport into a housing estate, depriving the town and the area of a much-needed facility in the modern world. However, dependent on one's point of view matters could have been better or

NOEL TURNER AWARD

Nominations are invited from any member of the Hadleigh Society for an award to be made in recognition of 'Outstanding improvements to, or conservation of, Hadleigh's buildings or environment'

In deciding to make an award the Society's Executive Committee and any expert they may wish to consult, will be considering how sympathetic the work is with its surroundings and how well it integrates with them. They will expect all work to display a high quality of workmanship and to be an example of good practice.

Nominations should include details of the improvement made or of work carried out and should be sent to the Hon. Secretary.

NEXT EVENT

On Wednesday 16th August Pip Wright, who last year entertained us on the subject of Suffolk Witches, returns to talk about Transportation in Suffolk. Convicts that is, not convoys.

worse, for in 1919 a far sighted government committee was considering internal air routes and those to the continent in which Hadleigh featured, along with Hounslow (London), Filton (Bristol), Sheffield, North Shotwick (Liverpool), Doncaster, Newcastle and Edinburgh. So Hadleigh nearly became another Stansted!

RUBY AND HER HORSES

In partnership with the Friends of Hadleigh Guildhall we are staging a special event on Friday 1st September. The evening starts at 7.30pm for 8pm. Tickets are £7.50, a glass of wine included and are available from Idler Book Shop or Jan Byrne 01743 822192.

This show, Ruby and Her Horses is of true life stories from the age of agricultural depression much of which is centred around Ruby's love and adventures with horses in these hard days. A time when you could walk on land from Cambridge to Clacton that nobody would take and as Ruby said 'if you hadn't got anything you were lucky for sooner or later you would lose it and you had not the worry of it.' The songs are sung by Andrew in his fine nut brown Suffolk voice whilst Neil tells the stories just as Ruby told them. Although this is only their fourth booking 'the boys' have already had excellent reviews as follows:

'An excellent show. The Bumpstead Boys gave us a full evening of stories, humour and local songs, accompanied by a wonderful range of photos projected onto a screen with themes to match the songs. Full of personal touches, the technical quality was excellent. To provide a perfect balance to the evening, Andrew has a fine voice whether singing unaccompanied or with the 2 squeeze boxes in action. We are hoping to attract them to Lavenham again soon.' Jim Keohane LAVENHAM LIFE

'An evening that many described as quite brilliant. A magnificent range of photographs all taken at the time by Ruby on her box brownie now digitalised and shown on the big screen took us back to the ways and attributes of the period between and before the two great world wars. These produced a range of emotions from sadness to side splitting laughter. This should not be missed - excellent entertainment.' Eddie Kench THE BOX RIVER NEWS

'A special evening - delightful' Barry Peters Editor WEST SUFFOLK NEWSPAPERS

THE HADLEIGH CORSET FACTORY

Roger Kennell has amassed an impressive collection of information about Hadleigh. To show that he's not just an expert on bricks, at our meeting on 24th May he wove the story of Hadleigh's corset factory, which was based in the Old Town Hall from about 1904 to 1925 and was an outpost of Pretty & Son of Ipswich. From 50 to 100 young women, including girls from 13, worked at rows of sewing machines for 3 shillings a day. We learned about ladies fashions a hundred years ago, about William Pretty and his son, and about our Guildhall in an earlier age. After the factory closed the town decided to reclaim its hall for town business and had the plaster removed to reveal the fine timbers we see today.

Roger has produced a small book on the subject and would be pleased to hear of any more anecdotes from this time. We look forward to his return next year to talk of some Men of Hadleigh.

AGM 2005 – SYNOPSIS (see Aug 2005 Newsletter or website for full report)

HISTORY GROUP REPORT The Group has continued to research Hadleigh life in the 1830s and is currently searching through local newspapers of the time for any relevant articles or advertisements. Two presentations of 'Highway Robbery in Hadleigh' (in St Mary's Church, Hadleigh and East Bergholt Church) had been very well received, and the Group has been booked for the Lavenham Society in December 2005.

PLANNING REPORT The Society identified a medieval wall at risk when an application was submitted for a proposed new housing site on the corner of Aldham Road/ Lady Lane. Babergh District Council's Conservation & Design Officer immediately placed a 'Building Preservation Order' on the wall, which is now listed. The Society also worked closely with the developer of the site and contributed input into the design of the proposed development.

REPRESENTATION ON OTHER BODIES John Bloomfield reported as Chair of the East of England Association of Civic Trust Societies (EEACTS). Hewill be stepping down as Chair in October 2005, but hopefully will remain on the committee. Jan Byrne represents the Society on the Town Forum and the Entertainments Committee, which has organised many summer events.

The Traffic Management and Environment Working Party has been disbanded by Suffolk County Council. This group had been very successful in achieving a number of projects for the town, and it is hoped that it might be re-instated in the future.

CHAIR'S REVIEW The May Show was well supported and we were pleased to offer part of the display to Fred Breyer and Peter Lee who are collecting information about the Hadleigh servicemen who died in the Second World War. In July 2005 the Society is taking part in the Hadleigh Community Tent at the Tendring Hundred Show. In September 2004 we participated in the Civic Trust's Heritage Open Days Weekend giving tours of the town, and will be doing so again this year. Much time has been taken up by 'Tesco'. This last year has been our first experience of tackling a District Plan Inquiry. This involved masses of written information and submissions produced by Joe Byrne, and oral evidence given by John Bloomfield and Jan Byrne for a period of about two hours. We await the outcome of the Inspector's recommendations. We understand that Tesco is expecting to have its amended planning application heard at Babergh District Council in the autumn, so we must remain vigilant.

NOEL TURNER AWARD 2004 There were two awards made this year. Clare Vint, Conservation and Design Officer at Babergh District Council, received the award for progressing a practical pavement scheme on the northwest side of the High Street, which emphasised the group value of listed buildings within the Hadleigh Conservation Area. The Ipswich and Norwich Co-Operative Society was nominated for the sensitive design of its supermarket extension and pedestrian link, whilst retaining the character of the High Street frontage.
